

Rental terms

Madinah Group — finding and renting homes in Madinah

Version 2.2 · 2 October 2026

These are the booking terms. Ticking the box in the request means you accept them. In short: state honestly who and how many will live there; the rent runs from the day the payment reaches the owner; I only connect you with the owner and settle you in — after move-in, all questions are settled with the owner. If I arranged and conducted the viewing, you may not bypass me after the viewing and arrange the rental of that apartment directly with the owner.

Key terms

- ◆ The residents and their number are stated correctly. If others or more arrive, the owner may refuse and the booking amount stays with the owner.
- ◆ The rent runs from the day the payment reaches the owner, not from the arrival day.
- ◆ After move-in, breakdowns and disputes are settled with the owner. The realtor is not liable.
- ◆ After a viewing arranged by the realtor, you may not bypass the realtor and arrange the rental of the same apartment directly with the owner. If you decide to rent it after the viewing, the deal goes through the realtor.
- ◆ Money passed to the owner is non-refundable. The realtor fee is also non-refundable once you have viewed the apartment and agreed — even if you later find another apartment.

1 The realtor's role and liability

- ◆ I am a realtor and intermediary: I find the apartment, show it and help you agree with the owner. The apartment does not belong to me.
- ◆ My job is done once you have moved in and received the keys. From then on, all questions about the apartment are between you and the owner.
- ◆ The realtor is not liable for the owner's decisions or refusal, disputes with the owner, breakdowns or the condition of the apartment after move-in.
- ◆ The realtor fee pays for my work: finding the apartment, taking you to see it and agreeing terms with the owner. It is paid once; the amount is shown on the apartment card. Once you have viewed the apartment, agreed to rent it and paid the fee, the work is done and the fee is not refunded — in full or in part — even if you later change your mind or find another apartment.

2 After a viewing: no bypassing the realtor

- ◆ If I arranged and conducted the viewing and the apartment did not suit you after the viewing, you may not contact the owner of that same apartment directly and arrange a rental while bypassing the realtor.
- ◆ If after the viewing you decide to rent that same apartment, the rental, price, payment and contract are arranged through the realtor who organized the viewing.
- ◆ Owner contact details obtained during the viewing or through the realtor may not be used to complete a deal for that apartment independently while bypassing the realtor.

3 Who moves in

- ◆ In the request you state who will live there — a family, brothers or sisters — and how many people in total, including children.
- ◆ Many owners rent only to families or limit the number of residents. The list of residents is passed to the owner before booking.
- ◆ If different or more people arrive than stated in the request — for example, students instead of a family, or eight people instead of two — the terms are broken. The owner may refuse to let them in, and the booking amount is cancelled and stays with the owner, who held the apartment and let no one else in. Anything you paid beyond the booking is returned by the owner. The realtor keeps none of this money and is not liable.
- ◆ Extra residents can only be added later with the owner's consent.

4 Booking and start of the rent

- ◆ The booking is the payment I pass on to the owner. From that day the apartment is held for you.
- ◆ If you book in advance, the rent runs from the day the payment reaches the owner, not from the day you arrive. Paid on the 3rd, arrived on the 7th — the month still starts on the 3rd.
- ◆ Money passed to the owner can be returned only by the owner, at the owner's discretion. The realtor does not refund it.
- ◆ Further payments fall on the same date of the month as the booking. The owner returns the deposit (ta'min) on move-out if the apartment is intact and the bills are paid.

5 Move-in: check everything at once

- ◆ On move-in day, check the air conditioners, water, electricity, appliances, furniture and locks.
- ◆ Photograph anything broken or damaged and send it to the owner and to me the same day. Later it will be disputable.
- ◆ After move-in, breakdowns and repairs are settled directly with the owner — the realtor is not responsible for them.
- ◆ The meter reading is recorded on move-in day. Give the owner notice before moving out, as the contract says.

6 Force majeure

- ◆ Earthquakes, fires, floods, epidemics, war, government decisions, border closures — circumstances no one can control.
- ◆ This also covers flight delays or cancellations, visa refusals, illness and other personal circumstances of the tenant.
- ◆ In such cases the realtor is not liable. The booking is not moved automatically; money matters are settled with the owner under the contract.

7 What the rent includes

- ◆ Each apartment card lists what is already in the price and what is paid separately — electricity, water, gas, internet.
- ◆ Furniture and appliances shown in the photos and videos stay in the apartment. If something is missing, say so before booking.
- ◆ Bed linen, dishes and small items are by agreement with the owner.

8 Documents and iqama

- ◆ Most apartments do not need an iqama — a passport is enough. Where one is required, the card says so.
- ◆ The contract is in Arabic — I translate the clauses before you sign. Do not hand over money without a receipt.

Disputed situations

These have happened before. Here is how each one is settled.

After the viewing, we decided to contact the owner directly

If the realtor arranged and conducted the viewing and the apartment did not suit the client, the client may not then arrange the rental of that same apartment directly with the owner while bypassing the realtor. If the client later decides to rent that apartment, the deal is completed through the realtor who arranged the viewing.

I paid the realtor and then found another apartment — will you refund the fee?

No. The realtor has already done the work: found the apartment, took you to see it and agreed terms with the owner — and you agreed to rent it and paid. The fee pays for that work; it is not a prepayment for the apartment, so it is not refunded, in full or in part, even if you found another place the same day. If you have not decided yet, do not pay the fee.

Different or more people arrived than stated in the request

For example, booked as a family but students arrived, or stated two people but eight came. The owner may refuse. The booking amount stays with the owner, who returns the rest. The realtor takes none of this money and is not liable. That is why the residents are stated honestly in advance.

Booked earlier, arrived later

The rent runs from the day the payment reaches the owner. Days before arrival are not moved or refunded: paid on the 3rd, arrived on the 7th — the paid month ends on the 3rd of the next month.

Something broke after move-in

Write to the owner — repairs are the owner's job. After move-in the realtor is not responsible for appliances or the apartment's condition. So check and photograph everything on move-in day.

A conflict with the owner

It is settled between you and the owner under the contract. I can advise, but I am not liable for the owner's decisions.

The owner asks you to leave early

That is a matter of the contract between you and the owner, including any refund for unused days. The realtor is not liable for the owner's decisions.

Visa refused or flight moved

The booking does not move: the rent runs from the booking date. Only the owner can return money, at the owner's discretion.

Water or electricity is off in the whole area

This is a city outage. Money for those days is not refunded — neither by the owner nor by the realtor.

The price went up for Ramadan

Prices in Madinah rise during Ramadan and Hajj. If the period is already paid, the price does not change within it. An increase is possible when you extend.

The apartment is not like the photos

The photos and videos are of the apartment itself. If in doubt, ask for a video walkthrough before paying. After booking and move-in such claims are not accepted.

Client's consent

By ticking the box in the request, the client confirms:

- ☒ I accept the booking terms: the residents and their number are stated correctly, the rent runs from the day the payment reaches the owner, and after move-in questions about the apartment are settled with the owner. If the realtor arranged the viewing, I will not bypass the realtor and arrange the rental of the same apartment directly with the owner. The realtor fee is non-refundable once I have viewed the apartment and agreed, even if I find another apartment.
